One-on-one interviews:

With students of NYUAD with different academic and social backgrounds about mental health issues and social media's role and whether it's good for mental support or adds to one's anxiety. These interviews are really important to us because we want our product not to bring stress like social media but provide support and company.

Questionnaire:

Since a considerable number of students are not on campus this semester and some people on campus prefer not to have in-person interactions and some prefer to remain anonymous we are planning on creating a questionnaire with mostly multiple choice questions and we ask about students coping mechanisms for anxiety and stress when in-person interactions are not available/you are far away.
